Mary Robinson

With a heart that beats fervently with the pulse of compassion and social justice, Mary Robinson has devoted her life to ensuring that each of the world's citizens lives with the human rights they deserve. From being President of Ireland, to the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights, Mary's journey has been fuelled most by her positive spirit.

Blake Mycoskie

Life paths are funny things. Just when you think you're heading in one direction, you are swung somewhere entirely different. A polo holiday in Argentina was the turning point for Blake Mycoskie. It was there he was inspired to create TOMS shoes, a one-for-one business that, for every pair sold, gives a pair to a child in need.

Del Lindgren

A sparkling smile that radiates with the joy of a life of 73 years lived with passion and adventure. A voice laced with patience, kindness and encouragement – the signature of a schoolteacher beloved by students the world over. These are just a few of the delights you will encounter upon meeting Del Lindgren.

METRO
curtain

Not everyone has a natural knack for reading maps, so for those living in underground-metro-woven metropolises, it's necessary to spend time brushing up on your routes. Time-poor denizens of London looking to learn the Tube lines a little better can now multi-task by studying in the shower. Izola Shower's London Underground Shower Curtain is just one of its many sophisticated designer shower curtains that incorporate the work of groundbreaking artists, bold patterns, map images and photography, for people looking to add a unique touch to their bathrooms. @ www.izolashower.com.

INSPIRED living

Seneca once said, "Wherever there is a human being, there is a chance for kindness." While our lives might be busy, our minds racing and our schedules full, taking a moment to show appreciation for those we care about is an invaluable treasure. Is there a 'thank you' that you should give to someone but keep forgetting? If today were your last day on Earth, would your loved ones know how you really feel? Positively Green cards, aside from being eco-friendly, yield many of the messages that we often forget to say out loud. Available at Biome. @ www.live-inspired.com.
